

Faculty Position
Associate Professor in Architectural Design

The Department of Architecture and Urban Studies at Politecnico di Milano aims at increasing its size and strength within the framework of the University plan to raise the number of International Faculty positions and widen the offer of Master level courses delivered in English.

The Department invites applications for one new full time permanent position at the Associate professor level from individuals who can contribute to the Department's strategic research plan by a demonstrated expertise in the area of architectural design.

The Associate professor will be asked to work in a research line which deals with the whole thematic field of architectural design, including relationship between different scales. It consists of theoretical and methodological topics - regarding problems and techniques about contemporary design and changing environment and about practical and experimental ones, aimed to handle typological, compositional, procedural and constructional features at different architectural scales.

Applicants must have a position equivalent to the Italian "Associate Professor" and must work in an international university or research institution since at least three years. The successful candidate will be expected to teach at graduate level, in English, to develop and sustain an independent research program, mentor graduate students and provide service to the University.

The application, composed of:

- Application letter addressed to the head of the Department
- Motivation letter
- Curriculum Vitae
- Description of research interest and activity and of teaching skills and experience has to be sent by e-mail to the Director of the Department
